MIDDLE GRADE FICTION

Jake Burt, THE TORNADO

(Feiwel & Friends, October 2019, world English)

Bell Kirby is an expert at systems, whether he's designing the world's most elaborate habitat for his pet chinchilla, re-creating Leonardo da Vinci's greatest inventions in his garage, or avoiding Parker Hellickson, the most diabolical bully Village Green Elementary has ever seen.

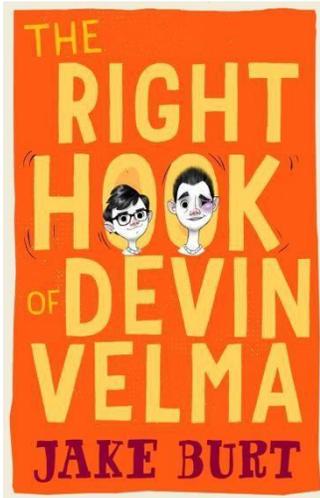

Since third grade, Parker has tormented Bell, who's spent two long years devising a finely tuned system that keeps him out of Parker's way - until Daelynn Gower touches down in his classroom like a tornado. Bell's not sure why the new girl is drawn to him, but he knows one thing - she means trouble. It's bad enough that she disrupts Bell's secret system, but when Daelynn becomes the bully's new target, Bell is forced to make an impossible decision:

Finally stand up to Parker. . . or join him.

Jake Burt, THE RIGHT HOOK OF DEVIN VELMA

(Feiwei & Friends, 2018, 240 p, world English.)

When Addison Gerhardt's best friend, Devin Velma, suggests that they try to achieve social media fame by pulling a stunt at a national basketball game, Addi knows he's doomed. Doing anything in front of anybody except Devin and their families is difficult for Addison, an introvert who suffers from anxiety. Devin, on the other hand, can't resist an opportunity to become a viral sensation.

Addi's not sure why Devin is bent on pulling off this feat. Maybe it has something to do with Devin's dad's hospital bills. Maybe it all goes back to the Double-Barreled Monkey Bar Backflip of Doom. Or maybe it's something else entirely. No matter what, though, it's risky for both of them, and when the big day finally comes, Devin's plan threatens more than just their friendship.

"Spot-on sixth-grade humor and sympathetic characters will hook readers as he explores fame and friendship in the age of social media."--Publishers Weekly

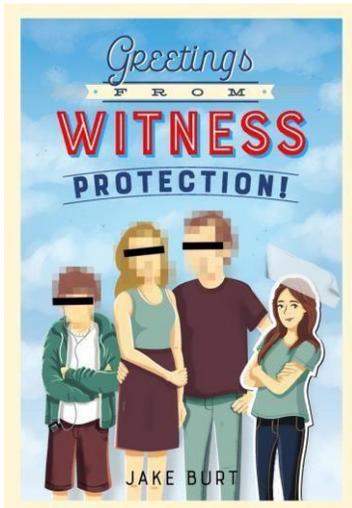

"Fisticuffs ensue, but so in time do good and brave words in this goofy, affectionate tale of loyalty, family and fraternity."--Wall Street Journal

"A sweet, accessible comedy about two sixth grade boys. Short and punchy sentences get straight to the funny stuff and leave just enough unexplained to keep readers moving to the resolution. ... A wholesome, appealing, and fast-paced friendship tale."--School Library Journal

Jake Burt, GREETINGS FROM WITNESS PROTECTION!

(Feiwei & Friends, 2017, 288 p., world English)

Nicki Demere is an orphan and a pickpocket. She is also the U.S. Marshals' best bet to keep a family alive. The marshals are looking for the perfect girl to join a mother, father, and son on the run from the nation's most notorious criminals. After all, the bad guys are searching for a family with one kid, not two, and a streetwise girl who knows a little something about hiding things may be just what the marshals need.

Nicki swears she can keep the Trevor family safe, but to do so she'll have to dodge hit men, cyberbullies, and the specter of standardized testing, all while maintaining her marshal-mandated B-minus average. As she barely balances the responsibilities of her new identity, Nicki learns that the biggest threats to her family's security might lurk not on the road from New York City to North Carolina, but rather in her own past.

Nicole Helget, THE END OF THE WILD

(Little, Brown Books for Young Readers, 2017, 272 p., world English)

A modern, beautifully written story set against the backdrop of the controversial issue of fracking that explores the timely themes of poverty, environmental protection, what makes a family, and finding your place in the world. Eleven-year-old Fern's rundown home borders a pristine forest, where her impoverished family hunts and forages for food. It's also her refuge from the crushing responsibility of caring for her wild younger brothers and PTSD-stricken stepfather. But when a fracking company rolls into town, Fern realizes that her special grove could be ripped away, and no one else seems to care.

Her stepfather thinks a job with the frackers could help pull the family out of poverty. Her wealthy grandfather--who wants to take custody of Fern and her brothers--likes the business it brings to his manufacturing company. Facing adversity from all sides, can one young girl make a difference in the fate of her family and their way of life?

Dayna Lorentz, RUFUS AND REENIE

(Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, Fall 2020, North America)

RUFUS & REENIE by Dayna Lorentz is a gorgeous younger middle grade novel about a fledgling Great Horned owl and an eleven-year-old girl who must learn to trust in each other—and in themselves. Readers who loved Barbara O'Connor's WISH and Wendy Mass and Rebecca's Stead's BOB will be drawn to the similar open-hearted rendering of true friendship that Reenie and Rufus experience.

Rufus's ears must be broken, because he's eight months old and still can't hunt in the dark. When his mother is hit by a car and taken by a human, he discovers just how dangerous the unforgiving forest can be.

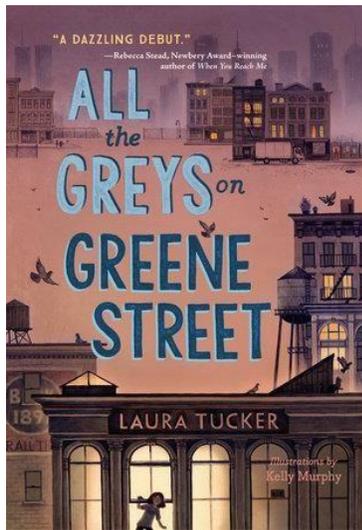

Reenie has given up on adults and learned how to care for herself, which is a good thing, since she's sent to live with a stranger—an alleged aunt she's never even heard of—while her mom is in the hospital. Yet this aunt, Beatrice, has a wonderful secret: she's a master falconer with a hawk named Red. Reenie is enchanted by Red, and even more so by the prospect of catching an injured passage hawk in the wild and rehabilitating it.

But instead of catching a passage hawk, Reenie traps poor, bedraggled Rufus, whose great, golden eyes lock onto her heart. Even though it's against the rules, Aunt Bea reluctantly agrees to help Reenie train the owl for falconry. Together, Rufus and Reenie learn that partnership is more powerful than going it alone, though the time inevitably comes when Rufus must trust that he can return to the forest and survive on his own in the wild, and Reenie must believe that by opening her heart, she too can soar.

Dayna Lorentz is the author of the middle grade trilogy Dogs of the Drowned City and the young adult trilogy No Safety in Numbers, which was an ALA Quick Pick for Reluctant Readers. She has worked in and around the foster care system for years, most recently as a law clerk in the Vermont family courts, but she only just started exploring the awesome sport of falconry. Dayna lives in Vermont with her husband and two children, and always scans the skies for hawks and the trees for owls.

Laura Tucker, ALL THE GREYS ON GREENE STREET
(Viking, Summer 2019, North America)

Twelve-year old Olympia is good at lots of things. Drawing, for one. Navigating the streets of downtown Manhattan by herself. And holding it together when everything else is falling apart.

It's May 1st, 1981. Ollie's dad has run off to France with a woman she and her mom call Vouley Voo. Her mom has gone to bed, and she's not getting up. Her friend Apollo is nobody's idea of a responsible grownup, but at least he's still around—for now. Ollie's got lots to keep her busy: being a friend, making art, and figuring out whether she's a dog or cat person, all while keeping her mom's depression a secret. But something's got to give, and when it does, Olympia eventually finds herself inside a happy ending she could never have predicted.

Laura Tucker is a New York Times-bestselling ghostwriter of adult nonfiction and the owner of two Brooklyn restaurants.

“A dazzling debut novel about resilience, courage, home and family.”

--Rebecca Stead, Newbery Award-winning author of *When You Reach Me

“A truly wonderful book about art and mystery, friendships and family. You are bound to fall in love with Ollie and you'll long remember her story.”

--Patricia Reilly Giff, Newbery Honor author of Lily's Crossing and *Pictures of Hollis Woods

“I'm not sure how its quiet power works, but it works; I stand in front of it, and I'm breathless. The last book that made me feel this way was Rebecca Stead's Goodbye Stranger.”

--Jack Cheng, award-winning author of *See You in the Cosmos

“Skillfully grounded in time and place, full of colorful characters and pearls of wisdom, Ollie's story shows how it's possible to save ourselves when the people around us can't.”

--Wendy Mass, New York Times bestselling author of *The Candymakers

“[A] brilliant debut novel... a richly textured delight: an art world mystery, a family drama, a sensitive depiction of depression, a crash course in colors and a portrait of a young artist... Tucker has written with such compassion and intelligence about what we see, what we overlook, and what we try to hide.”

Karen Romano Young, (illustrations by Jessixa Bagley), A GIRL, A RACCOON AND THE MIDNIGHT MOON (Chronicle Books, January 2020, world English)

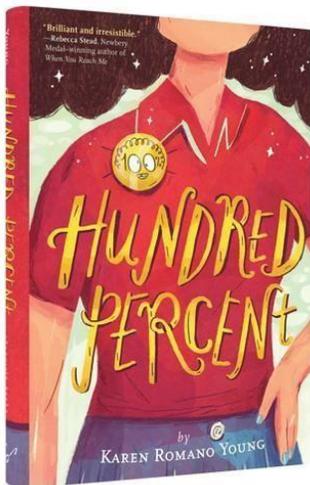

11-year-old Pearl is the daughter of the head librarian at a New York City public library that's struggling to keep its doors open. Pearl isn't the well-behaved, hushed daughter you'd expect, but instead a budding activist with a very loud cry for help. She rallies the library staff, the cops, local shopkeepers, homeless people, opportunistic real estate barons — and new friends — some with two feet, some with four — to help save the library. It turns out that the story Pearl's mother has been telling her for years, the one about the reading and writing raccoons who live in the library basement and publish their own newspaper for a nocturnal readership, is true!

Pearl joins forces with a young raccoon, an up-and-coming reporter named Mary Ann, and together they create a drama and performance that change their neighbors' thinking about books, their homes, and what it means to be an individual, unique part of a city. The result is a rollicking coming-of-age comedy with a gentle heart and a strong point of view about who you have to be in order to fully become yourself.

"I adore A Girl, a Raccoon, and the Midnight Moon—a tale bursting with charm, lovable characters, and excitement that builds and builds until I almost exploded. . . . It's a paean of praise to books, reading, librarians, and the preciousness of home, wherever home may be. I could go on and on, but read it yourself!"

Gail Carson Levine, New York Times bestselling author of Ella Enchanted

Karen Romano Young, HUNDRED PERCENT
(Chronicle Books, Fall 2016, 304 p., world English)

It's Tink's last year of elementary school, and this nickname she's always had, Tink, just isn't feeling right anymore. She's too tall for it now, or too big, or too old. Too...something. So—who is she, then?

Every single thing is coming up trouble for Tink: the picture day outfit gone wrong, the sleepover with the girl she hasn't even hung out with before, the boy she likes saying all kinds of things she doesn't, the best friend she knows better than anyone but suddenly feels different with. Tink struggles to find the formula for fifth grade success: what percentage of her has to fit the equation of what others expect her to be? And what will it take for Tink to get to the point where she feels a hundred percent herself?

Natalie C. Anderson, LET'S GO SWIMMING ON DOOMSDAY

(Putnam, January 2019, 464 p., North America)

Forced to become a child soldier, a sixteen-year-old Somali refugee must confront his painful past in this haunting, thrilling tale of loss and redemption for fans of A Long Way Gone and What is the What.

When Abdi's family is kidnapped by US forces in Somalia, he's forced to do the unthinkable: infiltrate ruthless jihadi group Al Shabaab and embed himself as a spy within their ranks, gathering information on the next planned attack. The members of Al Shabaab trust Abdi immediately because his older brother, Dahir, is already one of them, protégé to General Idris, aka the Butcher. If Abdi's duplicity is discovered, he will be killed.

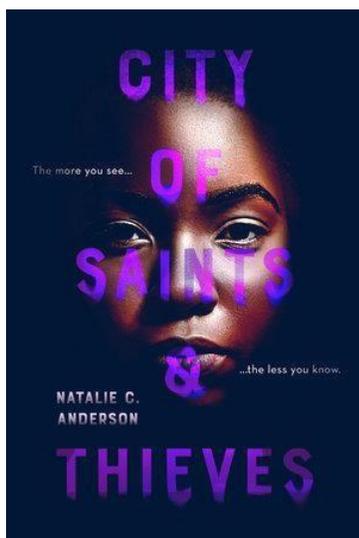

For weeks, Abdi trains with them, witnessing atrocity after atrocity, becoming a monster himself, wondering if he's even pretending anymore. He only escapes after taking part in an attack that leaves him missing two fingers and his brother near death. Eventually, he finds himself on the streets of Sangui City, Kenya, stealing what he can find to get by, sleeping nights in empty alleyways, wondering what's become of the family that was stolen from him. But everything changes when Abdi's picked up for a petty theft, which sets into motion a chain reaction that forces him to reckon with a past he's been trying to forget.

Natalie C. Anderson, CITY OF SAINTS AND THIEVES

(Putnam, 2017, 432 p., world English)

In the shadows of Sangui City, there lives a girl who doesn't exist. After fleeing the Congo as refugees, Tina and her mother arrived in Kenya looking for the chance to build a new life and home. Her mother quickly found work as a maid for a prominent family, headed by Roland Greyhill, one of the city's most respected business leaders. But Tina soon learns that the Greyhill fortune was made from a life of corruption and crime so when her mother is found shot to death in Mr. Greyhill's personal study, she knows exactly who's behind it.

With revenge always on her mind, Tina spends the next four years surviving on the streets alone, working as a master thief for the Goondas, Sangui City's local gang. It's a job for the Goondas that finally brings Tina back to the Greyhill estate, giving her the chance for vengeance she's been waiting for but instead sets into motion a dangerous cascade of events that could, at any moment, cost Tina her life. But finally uncovering the incredible truth about who killed her mother -and why - keeps her holding on in this fast-paced nail-biting thriller.

Kristin Cashore, JANE, UNLIMITED

(Kathy Dawson Books/Penguin, 2017, 480 p., North America)

One house. Five choices. Limitless possibilities.

Jane has lived a mostly ordinary life, raised by her recently deceased aunt Magnolia, whom she counted on to turn life into an adventure. Without Aunt Magnolia, Jane is lost. So she's easily swept away when a glamorous, capricious, and wealthy acquaintance from years ago asks Jane to accompany her to a gala at the extravagant island mansion called Tu Reviens. Jane remembers her aunt telling her: "If anyone ever invites you to Tu Reviens, promise me that you'll go."

What Jane doesn't know is that the house will offer her five choices that could ultimately determine the course of her life. One choice leads Jane into a heist mystery. Another takes her into a spy thriller. She finds herself in a gothic horror story, a space opera, and an extraordinary fantasy realm. She might fall in love, she might lose her life, she might come face-to-face with herself. Every choice comes with a price. But together, all the choices will lead her to the truth.

Jennifer De Leon, DON'T ASK ME WHERE I'M FROM

(Caitlyn Dlouhy Books/Simon & Schuster, January 2020, North America)

Fifteen-year-old Liliana Cruz moves between worlds and constantly crosses over walls, some she puts up for herself and some built by others. Her father has disappeared—gone one night without any warning—and her mother's depression is growing worse. From her family's apartment in Boston to her fancy high school in the suburbs, and from speaking Spanish with her family to honors French at school, Lili is pulled in many directions and begins to find some barriers unscalable.

When racial tensions at Lili's high school force people to choose sides, she must figure out how to stay true to her identity and finds herself more involved in issues of social justice than ever before. Her struggle comes to a head when Lili realizes that her father's absence isn't a voluntary one, but that he has been deported and is struggling to get back to his family. When the news spreads she decides to push through walls, translating her words into action. What Liliana does—or doesn't do—could alter the fate of her community, her family, and her future.

Desmond Hall, YOUR CORNER DARK

(Caitlyn Dlouhy Books/Simon & Schuster, Fall 2020, world English)

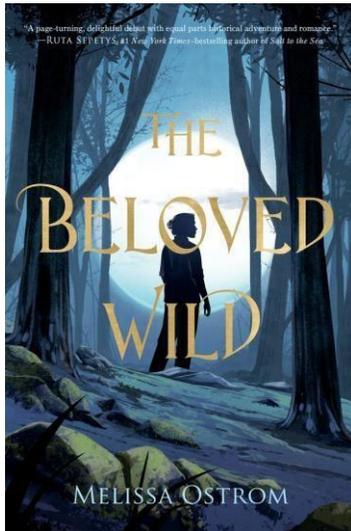

This extraordinary debut YA novel set on the unforgiving streets and majestic mountains surrounding Kingston, Jamaica. Frankie Green is an ambitious high school student with a talent for engineering who has just earned a ticket out with a full ride scholarship to the University of Arizona. But when a stray bullet gravely injures his father, Frankie must choose between following his dreams by taking his scholarship and finding a way to earn fast money to pay for the medications that might help save his father's life. The only job available is work in a gang run by his uncle and controlled by a conflicted police chief.

Frankie joins the posse and sinks further and further. Violence becomes second nature. But when art student Leah walks into his life, Frankie knows deep down that with her, he is his true self and with her lies his last hope for salvation.

YOUR CORNER DARK is a story that is by turns dark and exquisite, lush and vibrant; an exploration of the families we're born into and the families we build. It's Marlon James' A Brief History of Seven Killings meets Richard Price's Clockers for the YA audience.

Desmond Hall was born in Jamaica, West Indies and moved to Jamaica, Queens. He has worked as a high school biology and English teacher in East New York, Brooklyn, counseled teenage ex-cons after their release from Riker's Island, and served as Spike Lee's creative director at Spike DDB where he wrote many TV campaigns, two Superbowl commercials and won multiple awards. Desmond has served on the board of the Partnership for a Drug Free America, the Advertising Council, judged the One Show, Addys and the NYC Downtown Film Festival. He's also been named one of Variety magazine's Top 50 Creatives to Watch. Desmond lives in Boston with his wife and two daughters.

Melissa Ostrom, THE BELOVED WILD
(Feiwel & Friends, March 2018, world English)

In the spring of 1807, sixteen-year-old Harriet Winter is exactly the girl everyone expects her to be: the capable eldest daughter in a farming family, soon to be the wife of Daniel Long, a nice-enough neighbor whose initials, whittled on nearly everything he possesses, spell D.U.L. But Harriet has grown up with one eye on the cemetery, where her mother and grandmother lie, both dead before the age of twenty after giving birth to their daughters. When her brother Gideon confides his plan to leave their beloved farm and strike out for the Genesee Valley, Harriet decides to go with him – disguised as a boy.

As “Freddy,” a foundling recently escaped from a cruel apprenticeship to an “evil silversmith,” Harriet makes her way west by wagon with Gideon while trying to ignore painful thoughts of Daniel, about whom she’s lately had second (and third) thoughts, finally arriving at the thick, wet wilderness that Gideon has purchased for his future farm. And it is here, amid sickness, temptation, unexpected guests, and a never-ending battle to create a clearing in the woods, that Harriet finally understands what it is she really wants, from her life and from herself. A vivid, sharply funny and surprising story of adventure and love, The Beloved Wild reminds us that, when it comes to building a life, pants are comfortable, but friends are bedrock.

--Ruta Sepetys, #1 New York Times-bestselling author of Salt to the Sea.

“A complicated courtship in the wilderness plays out like Pride and Prejudice with a western backdrop, but the ending bucks tradition to set up a refreshingly level-headed ever-after that is steeped in reality and feels true to the journey.”

--Publishers Weekly

"Reminiscent of the works by Laura Ingalls Wilder, this charming novel is an enjoyable reflection on women's roles, romance, and the power of choice."

--School Library Journal

Melissa Ostrom, UNLEAVING

(Feiwel & Friends, March 2019, world English)

In a book both urgent and timely, Melissa Ostrom explores the intricacies of shame and victim-blaming that accompany the aftermath of assault.

After surviving an assault at an off-campus party, nineteen-year-old Maggie is escaping her college town, and, because her reporting the crime has led to the expulsion of some popular athletes, many people are happy to see her go. Maggie moves in with her Aunt Wren, a sculptor who lives in an isolated cabin bordered by nothing but woods and water. Maggie wants to forget, heal, and hide, but her aunt's place harbors secrets and situations that complicate the plan.

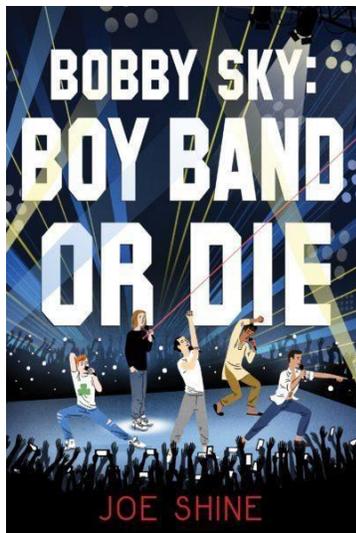

Worse, the trauma Maggie hoped to leave behind has followed her, haunting her in ways she can't control, including flashbacks, insomnia and a sense of panic. Her troubles intensify when she begins to receive messages from another student who has survived a rape on her old campus. Just when Maggie musters the courage to answer her emails, the young woman goes silent.

"Ostrom's sensitive treatment of a timely subject is a welcome addition to novels about rape and its aftermath. ...[T]he novel is full of people we recognize and care about. If the ending feels almost too strong and hopeful to be real, it will be a true comfort to those who have had similar experiences and need to see a way past their current pain."

Joe Shine, BOBBY SKY: BOY BAND OR DIE

(Soho Teen, 2018, 228 p., North America)

At fourteen, Robert "Hutch" Hutchinson is out of luck. His charm and singing voice – and penchant for bursting into song at all the wrong times – can't keep him out of trouble anymore. When he's arrested (again), he's given a choice: die in juvie or become a Shadow, the fearless, unstoppable and top-secret guardian of a Future Important Person, or FIP.

With nothing to lose, Hutch accepts. After two grueling years at the Future Affairs Training and Education (FATE) Center, Hutch can barely remember the boy he once was. His entire existence has been erased. Ready for anything, he expects to be plunged into a battle zone. Instead he learns that his FIP is someone named Ryo Enomoto. Yes, the Ryo Enomoto: front man of world-famous boy-band International. Worse, Hutch has to put his old talents to use. He must join the band and change his name to Bobby Sky. Is this for real? Has he really turned himself into a lethal killing machine...only to become a teen pop sensation?

A pulse-pounding companion novel to I BECOME SHADOW.

"Bobby Sky is like the very best pop songs: catchy, thrilling, and over far too soon."

–Kevin Emerson, bestselling author of the Exile trilogy

Joe Shine, I BECOME SHADOW

(Soho Teen, 2015, 352 p., North America)

With a "headstrong heroine on par with Katniss Everdeen and Tris Prior" (Kirkus) this debut thriller combines a pulse-pounding scifi thriller with a new adult coming-of-age story set at Texas A&M University.

When Ren Sharpe was fourteen, she was kidnapped by a shadowy organization called FATE and trained to be a human weapon. Now, four years later, she receives her assignment: protect Gareth Young at all costs. Currently a student at Texas A&M, Gareth will someday change the world. FATE calls people like Gareth "FIPs"—future important people—and they're everywhere, each with a FATE-trained shadow.

But when disaster strikes, Ren will have to turn on her maker. Together with Junie, a fellow abductee and the one person she trusts, Ren takes Gareth on the run.

Because whatever else happens, failure is not an option.

Joe Shine grew up in Austin, TX (the greatest city ever) and is a graduate of Texas A&M University. He has a MFA from the Peter Stark Producing Program at the University of Southern California, and after brief stints in Los Angeles and Washington DC Joe returned home to Austin (repeat: the greatest city ever). Joe has a normal human job like most everyone else but hopes to become a full time writer one day, and this is where you, the reader, must do him a really big solid and love I Become Shadow, his debut novel

I BECOME SHADOW was ranked #2 out of 10 on the YALSA official 2015 Teens' Top Ten titles and was also selected for the 2016 Texas Lone Star Reading List.

"The greatest strength is Ren's jokey, snark-a-minute narration; that alone puts it in the same ballpark as Michelle Gagnon's Persefone trilogy or Anthony Horowitz's AlexRider thrillers." —VOYA

"A fast, funny, sharp debut." —Kiersten White, New York Times bestselling author of *Paranormalcy

"With a love triangle, vivid training sessions, and ample action, Shine's debut introduces a new kick-butt, funny heroine who could hold her own in a ring full of tough, independent girls like Katniss Everdeen, Tris Prior, and Lela Santos." —Booklist

"In his debut, Shine delivers a thrilling plot and a headstrong heroine on par with Katniss Everdeen and Tris Prior." —Kirkus Reviews

"Brimming with wisecracks and jokes, which turn an interesting concept into a very light read . . . plenty of excitement and humor." —School Library Journal

Andrew Simonet, WILDER
(FSG, 2018, 320 p., North America)

Jason Wilder, a senior at Unionville High, is broke and isolated after a town feud has flared into something serious, and he desperately needs to tell you his story.

I was in the Rubber Room for my own protection. Meili got there by breaking Laura Fenton's middle finger.

The high school's “Rubber Room” is delinquent-proof: plastic windows, stubby pencils, and near-constant supervision. When Meili – or Melissa, as she calls herself - walks in, Jason’s life is dramatically altered. As Jason and Meili pass notes and steal moments of conversation, he learns fragments of her past: her father, a witness in a corruption case in Hong Kong, sent her to hide in rural Unionville. Jason shares his own secrets - he is on probation for arson, and his alcoholic mother has taken off to Florida with her boyfriend. No one is supposed to know he lives alone.

Jason falls for Meili warily, then fiercely. When her identity is exposed, Jason hides her at his rundown house. As she plots a dangerous path back to her family and her affluent life abroad, Jason dreams of leaving, too, escaping his enemies, his past, his poverty and his crushing loneliness. But when menacing people from Meili’s world come looking for her, Jason is forced to confront his true self and the limits of violence.

Twisty, authentic, and flawlessly written, WILDER combines the palpable longing of ELEANOR & PARK with the razor-sharp focus of GONE GIRL. This novel is, ultimately, a blow to the heart.

"Simonet's plotting is superb, and he sharply writes two unique characters, whose sparring will be as exciting to readers as it is to Jason and Meili. A fresh story, boldly told."

--Booklist, starred review

"Simonet holds his cards very close to the vest throughout the narrative, creating Jason as a credible and sympathetic victim of some pretty rough circumstances as well as a righteous defender of endangered women. [A] suspenseful read a psychologically haunting finish."

--The Bulletin of the Center for Children's Books

"Instead of delivering a clear-cut moral and tidy resolution, debut author Simonet leaves readers to decide whether Jason’s actions are justified and whether he is a criminal, a hero, or a victim."

--Publishers Weekly

"A page-turning, mind-twisting adventure that illuminates the complexity of male Violence – Jason’s story gripped me by the lapels and refused to let me look away."

--Dashka Slater, award-winning author of The 57 Bus

"Wilder is unique, innovative, edgy. A powerful mixture of funny and serious that will jolt you into a deeper understanding of the relentless longing for love that we carry within us."

--Francisco Stork, award-winning author of Marcelo in the Real World
